

MONA MAHAL, MD

Mona Mahal is Clinical Assistant Professor of Medicine at Robert Wood Johnson Medical School. She trained in Infectious Diseases at Columbia University, New York. Over the years she has published several papers and run clinical trials.

Her interest lies in taking care of immunocompromised patients. These include patients suffering from HIV infection, and those undergoing bone-marrow or solid organ transplant.

She is very involved in teaching young medical students, Medicine residents and Infectious Diseases Fellows. She is also Adjunct Clinical Assistant Professor at the Ernest Mario School of Pharmacy, Rutgers University.